Although he is no longer interested in the matter personally, Mr. May told an "Evening World" reporter this morning that after he discovered the forged signature of his client, Mr. Jones, on the fraudulent mortgage he went to Police Headquarters and reported the matter to Bupt. Byrnes. What steps the police had taken, however, he did not know.

J. Baptist Marshall, who was the attorney for Delia Keegan in her suit against Russell Bage, said this morning that he had known Hallen for two years past, since he had occupied offices in the Schermerhorn Building.

"I think in the light of recent developments that Hallen has been carrying a big load for some time, borrowing from one person to pay another. He got me interested in his Consolidated Gas and Improvement Company, but I got my money back.

"He is one of the most plausible men I ever met, and he would make a person believe anything. He is also a man of the most astonishing nerve. I should not be surprised to see nim walk in even now, give a plausible reason for his conduct and square up with everybody.

"I only saw him for a moment after Mr. May came in here last Wednesday, and he did not refer to the matter of the mortgage at all. The next day he disappeared. In my opinion he raised all the money he could before he went away.

"One of his clients who came on here "One of his clients who came on here said that he had discovered that his name had been forged to a draft for $700, which had been sent to Hallen, and the money collected on it. That is only a sample of other losses, None of the amounts

Hallen has been practising law in New York for ten years. He was at one time in the office of Ira Shaffer, and then he went into the United States
Commercial Agency and collected claims Commercial Agency and collected claims for that Company.

About two years ago indictments were found against him on various charges of larceny made by the officers of the Company, and Hallen made quite a stir by conducting his own defense before Judge Fitzgerald, in General Bessions. The fury acquitted him of the charges, and he went into the practice of law again.

It is said that many of his clients who were very bitter against him at that time returned to him. Hallen lived at the Hotel Endicott, at Elighty-first street and Amsterdam avenue. His wife and family are still there. No information as to his whereabouts could be obtained at the hotel this morning.

Mrs. Kane is said to be living at the Hotel Terminus, Paris, and Judge Mc-Adam signed an order to have the papers served on her there.

Kane belongs to the Union and Calumet Clubs of this city and the Badminton Club, London. He is the son of the late Pierre Kane. Granville Kane and Henry B. Kane are his brothers.

Mrs. Kane is the daughter of the late Gen. Hoyt and a sister of Gould Hoyt, Winfield Scott Hoyt and Percy Hoyt.

Livingston Boyd, the co-respondent, is well known here. He resides in Paris with his mother.

Mrs. Robert J. Gaul for the possession of their little daughter Madge Irene, was submitted to Judge Patterson in Supreme Court Chambers to-day.

Mrs. Gaul's attorney, Maurice Mayer, asked the Judge for an order against Robert J. Gaul for the delivery of the child to his wife, on the ground of the testimony offered before the referce.

As the writ on which the child was brought into court was issued by Judge Ingraham and the referce was appointed by him, Judge Patterson declined to render a decision.

He adjourned the case until Monday at 10:30 A. M., when Judge Ingraham will again be sitting in Chambers. He signed an order directing the father to have the child in court Monday morning for the final disposition of the case.

After leaving the courtroom Attorney Mayer told an "Evening World" reporter that Gaul had moved furniture and personal effects from the flat at 141 East Ninety-sixth street, and he feared that he would take the child from the jurisdiction of the court before the decision had been rendered.

To avoid this, Lawyer Mayer has had the rallroad depots and steamer docks watched. Mrs. Gaul and her father, Prederick Featherdew, yesterday received by mail letters advising them that their effects had been placed in charge of the janitor at the flat building.

> The result of last night's raid was twenty-eight women and six men. Some of these were spared the indignity of being locked up in the cells all night, and were released on bonds to appear in court this morning. All of them came to the court in carriages, and the "cabbles" remained in waiting for them to reappear. O'Connor is to be investigated because he allowed the places found by Schmittberger to exist, and certain residents of that territory are now hinting that if Capt. Haughey, who succeeded Schmittberger in the Twenty-second Precinct should develop a desire to do so he could The houses raided were 102 West Forty-sixth street, 104 West Forty-ninth street and 141 West Fifty-third street, kept respectively by Annie Grey, Lucy McCarthy and Mary Clinton, who were captured. place Schmittberger in the very same plight before the Police Board as that in which O'Connor finds himself.

Mrs. Gaul's Counsel Intends to Have Her Husband Watched.

The testimony taken before Referee Nealis in the legal fight of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Gaul for the possession of their little daughter Madge Irene, of their little daughter Madge Irene, was submitted to Judge Patterson in cinct to comment on the seeming lethargy of the police in not taking action to abate at least the policy-shop nulsance. These property owners claim to have addressed four petitions to Capt. Schmittberger requesting him to suppress the policy-shops extending from Fiftieth to Sixtieth streets on Tenth and Eleventh avenues. They seem not to have been imbued exactly with the unselfish Parkhurstian spirit of reform in making these requests, lnasmuch as they are said to have been moved solely by the fact that their tenants were wasting all their earnings on the policy game

Desirous of ascertaining the extent to which the evil complained of by the landlords existed, "The Evening World" instituted a little investigation of its own.

instituted a little investigation of its own.

Little children were found yesterday afternoon clustered around certain stores on Tenth and Eleventh avenues, between the streets indicated by the complaining landiords. The blinds of these stores were pulled down on the inside of the show windows and large yellow sporting posters were fastened to the glass panes in such a way that they might cover up every avenue of light into the respective places. The doors were locked.

What, then, were the children doing there?

the city, according to Mrs. A. Cummings, of 40 and 42 West Twenty-fourth street.

Mrs. Cummings declares that not only was a mistake made in raiding her house, but that a robbery occurred during her enforced absence.

"When we were hustled off to the station-house," said Mrs. Cummings this morning, "the house was left in charge of a policeman. On our return next day we found a gold watch, a quantity of silk hosiery and several dollars in coin missing. Besides. four doors were battered down causelessly, and the floors were littered with fragments of photographs which the policemen had torn."

Mrs. Cummings said she had concluded to waive examination before Justice Koch in Jefferson Market Court and to have her case taken to the General Sessions Court, because, if held by Justice Koch, on the charge of keeping a disorderly house, it might be difficult for her to establish her right to a recovery against the city for damages on account of the raid.

Supt. Byrnes this morning had conferences with the following Captains: Strauss, Pickett, Allaire, Cortright, Creeden, Schultz, Price, McCullough, Martens, Schmittberger and Gallagher.

It was also learned to-day that Supt. Byrnes had yesterday visited the preficincts of Capt. O'Connor, Church street station; Capt. Martens, East Thirty-fifth street station. He was accompanied by Inspector McLaughlin at the last two station-houses.

There is another one on the opposite side of the avenue, within less than a stone's throw of the one frequented by Eddie Lee. There another group of children was collected.

None of the adults in the neighborhood would admit the existence of these places. When asked, they invariably shrugged their shoulders and said:

"We don't bother with such things. It's none of our business what other people do. Everybody has a right to make a living."

A sentleman who has been studying the problem of wiping out evil resorts of every kind in that section of the city told the reporter that he had gathered ample evidences of the existence there of disorderly houses, which he would in time place at the disposal of the public, but that he had not yet had an opportunity to look into the policy shop question.

"Now however, that my attention has been called to it," he said, "I shall make every effort to gather in evidence against this perhaps equally pernicious, policy nuisance, and within a very few days the police, unless they grow active in the meanwhile and close up these places, may be prepared to hear something drop."
